

Art of Hosting

Turtle Island (North American) Practitioners Gathering

Otterbein University in Westerville (Columbus), Ohio

“What is needed to consciously host and work through tensions of power and privilege while honoring unity in diversity?”

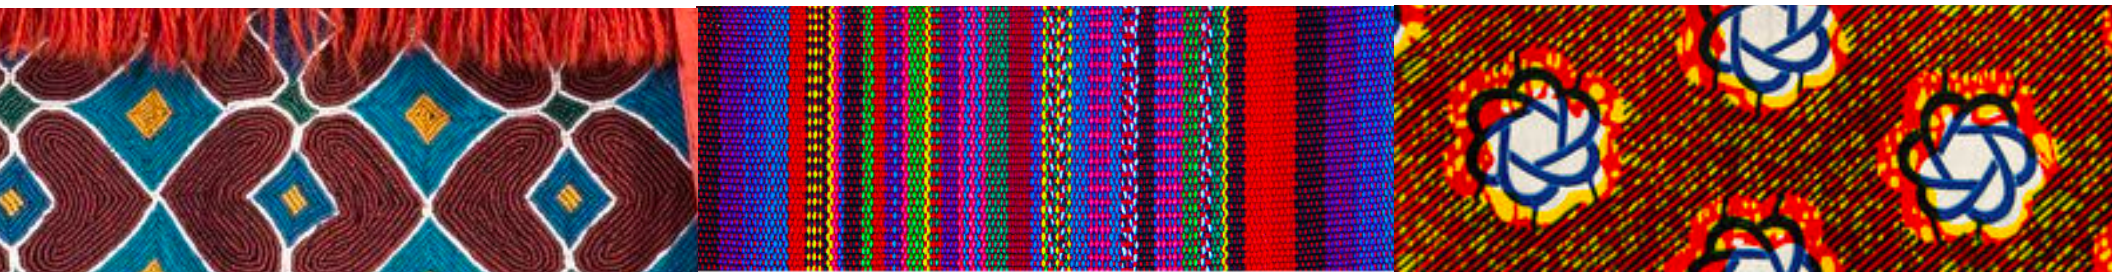

This is an invitation to question our assumptions and to host our discomforts and shakiness while cultivating belonging. Bring your questions and curiosity, in a safe enough space, where we can meet in our differences and experience the joy and challenge of being a community. Some of us have the privilege to avoid addressing the tensions while others of us experience it daily.

We invite you to weave a resilient container that can hold the spectrum of conversation.

- Bring your hardest, real questions in your work and life
- Take a breath in lightness and playfulness and the joy of being.
- Ask for what you need, and offer what you can.
- Co-create the best possible 'new' together.
- Experience this moment of involution and evolution for our field of practice

Come to Columbus, Ohio... the Seneca name for "Ohio" is a name for the Ohio River, Ohiyo, which means "it is beautiful."

The territory of the Chippewa, Delaware, Erie, Honniasont, Illinois, Iroquois/Seneca, Mingos, Miami, Ottawa, Potawatomi, Shawnee, and Wyandot/Hurons. African American people thrive here, in the midst of anti-black racism. An area rich with the history of Native American Moundbuilders as well as a city whose very name honors a figure of genocide, and yet is only one layer in an era of complex relationships.
