

Dear friends,

We hope you are all keeping well and safe in these continued, troubled times.

We believe that conscious leadership practices are key to all of us. And our format of working/ experimenting/ playing with them needs to adapt to the evolving & increasingly virtual reality we are all living in.

Keen to meet these current realities, we are pleased to announce that the Art of Participatory Leadership workshop that was to be held in Geneva March 17 to 20 will not be postponed but offered as a learning journey and experience online.

Our intention as a hosting team is to support everyone in dealing effectively with the challenging contexts we are all living in - building on the learning and experiences we all have been having over the last year(s), practicing, sharing, developing further and reaching new heights together to bring our practices to the next stage of evolution.

As we now have the capacity to welcome a larger group of participants than we anticipated through the use of collaborative platforms, we wonder if you might be interested to join us on this innovative journey.

This journey encompasses 4 half-days with some additional sessions on March 17-20 followed by 1 half-day in May/June and looks as follows:

- 4 half-days (3.5 hours per session)
 - o March 17th: afternoon (14h-17h30)
 - o March 18th, March 19th, March 20th: mornings (9am-12.30pm)
 - o with possible sessions in the afternoon of March 18th and 19th in smaller groups for ca. 1.5 hours
 - o and some coaching sessions in the afternoon
- With one half-day “Integrating and deepening” session in May – June to foster the learning, share and learn together, consolidate, identify further development opportunities. We will propose 2 dates, so that you can choose the date that best suits you – or even join both if you wish.
