We invite you to join us for the Art of Hosting and Harvesting meaningful Conversations, focusing on the question:

How can we stand together and collectively build new paths forward in the age of polarisation and “othering”?

Hungary is the perfect place to explore this most important question. This is a land where many European values have been curtailed or blocked and many people feel a lack of hope that change will come. Yet, paradoxically, it is also a place where societal innovation happens, where we can learn to strengthen our ability to act, where we can dig deeper into what community means and find new forms of standing up for what we want to see and living it together.
